

Guidelines students

The informal education's aim is to motivate the participation of the pupils by stimulating their interest and creating awareness for a cause without judgment. The international students must create a safe space for the pupils; make them feel comfortable enough to give comments and to participate. The Erasmus in Schools session should be inspiring; it's about developing the personal experience and individual. To do so, the student should use its creativity for getting attention.

Tips

- You might be communicating with the pupils in a foreign language, so make sure you use simple words and speak slowly and distinctively.
- Leave plenty of time for questions and be friendly. You can also use humor to create a more relaxed atmosphere and keep their attention.
- Try not to bombard them with information
- Be as interactive as possible, through games, dances, songs, drawings, quizzes etc.
- If the pupils are young try to get them physically active and consider bringing foods and drinks from your country.
- Consider various types of approaches and materials/methods (film, PowerPoint presentation, questions, group work, team building etc). Make a lesson plan in cooperation with the school you are going to:
 - What do you want to tell the pupils (the purpose/goal, outline of content)
 - How will you perform this (which materials needed)
 - How long will each part take (leave time for questions)
